

A close-up portrait of a young Black woman with long, dark, wavy hair, smiling warmly. She is wearing a light blue button-down shirt under a dark blue blazer. The background is a plain, light-colored wall.

"The Adam Smith Fellowship gave me the opportunity to discuss the big ideas implicit in the economics that I learn every day in my graduate program. Even better, I had the ability to discuss these ideas with people trained in disciplines different from my own. In general, I feel that this increased economic literacy will enable me to be a better professor in the years to come."

Jakina Debnam

PhD student in applied economics, Cornell University

Interested in political economy? Apply to become a Mercatus Adam Smith Fellow. Fellows spend three weekends during the academic year and one week during the summer participating in workshops and seminars on the Austrian, Virginia, and Bloomington schools of political economy. Fellowships are awarded to PhD students from any university, in a variety of fields including economics, philosophy, political science, and sociology.

Visit grad.mercatus.org.

MERCATUS CENTER
George Mason University