

THE MERCATUS JOSEPH SCHUMPETER UNDERGRADUATE FELLOWSHIP

WHAT ARE MERCATUS JOSEPH SCHUMPETER FELLOWSHIPS?

The Mercatus Joseph Schumpeter Undergraduate Fellowship is a one-year, competitive fellowship program for undergraduate students at George Mason University. Fellowships are open to full- and part-time Mason students from any discipline who are interested in studying key ideas in political economy and in learning how to utilize these ideas in academic and policy research. Schumpeter Fellows attend a series of conversations with various Mason economics faculty members.

THE TOTAL FELLOWSHIP AWARD INCLUDES

- $1,000 stipend and
- advice on research, jobs, and graduate school.

WHY THE MERCATUS CENTER AT GEORGE MASON UNIVERSITY?

The Mercatus Center at George Mason University bridges the gap between academic ideas and real-world problems.

Mercatus Joseph Schumpeter Fellows have an opportunity to study foundational writings in political economy from several notable economists. Schumpeter Fellows will join a network of Mercatus students, alumni, faculty, and scholars who are conducting and engaging with cutting-edge research in contemporary political economy.

CONTACT INFORMATION

For more information about the Mercatus Joseph Schumpeter Fellowship, including application instructions, please visit grad.mercatus.org or contact

Graduate Student Programs
Mercatus Center at George Mason University
SchumpeterFellowship@mercatus.gmu.edu

MERCATUS CENTER
George Mason University